Ellen Lindner is well-known for her dynamic and diverse quilts, and for her skills as a teacher. (See her website: <http://adventurequilter.com/>) We will have the chance to meet and be inspired by Ellen when she presents to our guild in October, and then, to follow up by taking a workshop with her in February, where we will learn design and technical skills to create our own nature quilts. Here is Ellen's description of the workshop:

"This class will help take the fear out of design. Using your own nature photo, you'll learn how to interpret it in fabric. Multiple group and solo exercises will give you the skills and confidence you need to start your own design. A raw edge collage technique will ensure maximum flexibility and speedy results.

These are just a few of the things you'll be learning:

- Creating a sense of depth.
- Identifying and placing a focal point.
- How cropping can help a composition.
- Getting your fabric to do the work.
- How to work with raw edge collage.

Note: No artistic skills are needed, but artistic courage is required.

To register, please email eggeducation1@gmail.com with your name and contact information, and we will get back to you as soon as possible to give you information about how to pay for the workshop.

Note: Your quilt will look entirely different, since you'll design it from your own photo
